

A Pair of Publications for President's Day

Posted At : February 21, 2011 11:15 AM | Posted By : Seth Chalmer

Related Categories: democracy, history, diversity, leadership, holidays, religion and state, political behavior, government

In 1980, Jonathan D. Sarna examined the “myth” that a Jew can become President of the United States. Sarna wrote that this notion has great value and usefulness for both Jewish and Gentile Americans, but he considered it quite unlikely actually to occur at any near date. (It would be interesting to hear what he would say now, these thirty years hence. Dr. Sarna, are you reading this? What say you?)

More recently, a mere decade ago, Leonard Dinnerstein explored the relationship between American Jews and every American President from FDR to Bill Clinton.

Happy President's Day!